By Associated Press.

London, May 24.—A dispatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph Company says a telegram from Basel states that the Wolff Agency announces Germany has declared war against Italy and recalled Prince von Buelow, her ambassador at Rome.

Rome, May 24.—Official announcement was made here today that Austrian aeroplanes have attacked the government arsenal at Venice. The aeroplanes were driven off.

Porto Corsini, Ancona, Barletta and Gesi also were attacked.

It is apparent from the foregoing dispatch that Austrian aeroplanes have swept virtually the entire east coast of Italy. From Venice they have made their way south to Barletta, a distance of 350 miles.

London, May 24.—A Reuters dispatch from Madrid says German and Austro-Hungarian representatives at the Italian courts at the Vatican are leaving Rome tonight, having intrusted the interests of their countries to the Spanish ambassador in Rome.

The Hague, May 24.—From information reaching the Hague it is understood that the Germans and Austrians have concentrated approximately 680,000 men on the Italian frontier.

They have occupied strategic positions in order to meet an attack or to attempt to strike the first blow in an endeavor to dishearten the new combatants at the beginning of the campaign.

Paris, May 24.—An attack by Austrian warships on the eastern coast of Italy, along the Adriatic, is announced in an official communication from the Italian War Office, transmitted to Paris by the correspondent of the Havas Agency.

It is said the Austrian warships were forced to withdraw after a short cannonade.

At Ancona, where an attempt was made to blow up the railroad, slight damage was done by the bombs from the aeroplanes. The Austrian aeroplanes, the report says, were attacked by Italian aeroplanes, anti-aircraft, artillery and a dirigible.

A part of the statement says: "It was foreseen that, on the declaration of war, offensive action would occur against our Adriatic coast, with the purpose of seeking moral effect rather than attaining a military pur-personal liberties, especially in regard to public meetings.

A day of suspense, awaiting the declaration of war, found all Italy eager for the conflict. Thousands of volunteers have proffered their services. Volunteers 18 years of age or older will be accepted, if physically fit for the duration of the war.

Intense indignation has been aroused by reports that Italians have been ill treated along the Austrian and German frontiers. A trainload of Italians are reported to have been driven into a field near Goritz, to remain all night in a heavy rain without food or shelter. Several children are said to have died from the experience. Women in the party were allowed to cross the frontier the next day, but all men were detained.

Reports that Baron Burian, the Austrian foreign minister, has resigned are generally believed here. His reported fall is attributed to failure of negotiations with Italy.

Newspaper reports deny Vienna statements charging that Italy did not adhere to the principles of the triple alliance treaty. One paper says the position of Italy became intolerable when Austrian and German aggression against Serbia began.

Amsterdam, May 24.—Patriotic manifestations reached a climax in Vienna last night, according to a telegram received here from the Austrian capital.

After Italy's declaration of war and the manifesto of Emperor Francis Joseph, calling upon the army, navy and all his people for patriotic devotion, had been published in special editions, crowds gathered in all parts of the city.

Thousands of residents paraded the streets, singing patriotic songs and cheering the emperor.

Indignation against Italy found expression in cries of "down with the traitor."

Town councils of Trieste and Geritz have been dissolved. Newspapers assert Austria-Hungary has no fear of the outcome of a war with Italy, this being preferred to a friendship purchased with heavy sacrifices.

Diplomatic relations were discussed. Baron Sonnino referred particularly to the relations between Italy and Germany, expressing the belief that the Germans would declare war as soon as official news had been received of Italy's declaration against Austria-Hungary.

The cabinet council did not consider military questions, as they onstrations in favor of the war have been intrusted to the general staff, which will work in harmony Venice, Genoa, Milan and the other with commanders of the allied forces large centers, crowds throng the Financial measures were taken up, streets, cheering for the king and it is believed a loan will be the army.

providing for a rigid censorship of service in the army and navy.

MAN OF WAR

Berlin, May 24.—The Overseas News Agency today gave out the following: "According to a Bucharest dispatch the Russian armored man-of-war Wyntelimon has been sunk, with 1400 men, in the Black Sea.

The foregoing evidently refers to the Russian battleship Panteleimon. This warship, whose destruction is said to have caused the loss of 1400 lives, is put down in naval reference books as having a complement of 740 men. In time of war this number might be increased.

It is estimated there are 125,000

Italians of military age in this city.

More than 4,000 have enrolled.

WILSON URGES CLOSER
UNION OF AMERICAS

By Associated Press.

Washington, May 24.—President Wilson, speaking at the opening of the pan-American financial conference here today, expressed the hope that the Americas might show the world the path to peace.

The president was loudly applauded as he entered the hall in the pan-American building, where the meeting was being held. On the platform were members of the cabinet, while the audience included many high government officials, in addition to the representatives of South and Central American countries.

The president declared the people of the Americas were not trying to again.

ITALY JOINS IN BIG WAR

Formal Declaration Issued By Rome and the First Serious Clashes Occur on Border—Roumania Expected to Follow Italy's Lead Within a Short Time.

Rome, May 24.—Italy declared war against Austria Sunday afternoon.

King Victor Emmanuel's proclamation fixed May 24 as the date for the opening of hostilities.

The Duca d'Avarna, the Italian ambassador at Vienna, was instructed to present the declaration to Baron Burian, the Austrian premier, and leave at once for home.

When the public became aware of the fact that hesitation was at an end and the Italian government definitely committed to make war for the redemption of the territory inhabited by Italians and under Austrian rule, the enthusiasm of the people knew no bounds.

While the general mobilization order will bring about 3,000,000 men to the colors within a month, it is known that Italy will start the war with about 760,000 first line troops. At the outbreak of the European war the Italian army consisted of 300,000 men, the classes with the colors being those of 1891, 1892 and 1893. After the war started two more classes, including about 220,000 men, joined the colors. Various other changes recently made under order from General Zupelli, the minister of war, brought the strength up to 760,000 at present.

It is likely that the army will be under the direct command of General Caneva, who led the Italian forces in the conquest of Tripoli, or General Count Cadorna, the chief of the general staff. In case the military operations call for a division of the forces into two units, each of these officers will have command of an army.

All Called to Colors.

Notices signed by King Victor Emmanuel called to the colors all men belonging to the army classes from 1876 to 1895. In other words, every Italian of military age has been called out. The fact caused no excitement, as general mobilization has been expected since the action of parliament on Thursday.

The carbineers, sharpshooters, aviation staff, transport and medical corps will be called at once. The infantry of the territorial militia of the five classes from 1877 to 1881 will be called to the colors tomorrow. The remainder of the reserve forces will not be called until June 1.

Pope Benedict has ordered the hospice of Santa Marta and the six seminaries, including the German college and the South American, converted into hospitals and placed at the disposal of the Red Cross for wounded soldiers.

The army authorities have taken control of the railroads and all vehicles, wagons and automobiles, as well as all the horses in the kingdom, have been commandeered. The censorship in Italy is much more strict than in France and England. It has been announced that no newspaper correspondents will be permitted to accompany the army.

Roumania's entry into the war is now believed to be a question of a day or two, following Italy's declaration. The fears felt in Bucharest that Bulgaria might seize the opportunity to make an attack on Roumania have been allayed by the official declaration that Bulgaria will keep her hands off. It is not considered improbable, too, that Bulgaria will invade Turkey in the hope of winning back Adrianople, taken from her as a result of the second Balkan war.

WAR STRENGTH OF ITALIANS

New York, May 24.—The total war strength of Italy's army is 3,330,292 men of all ranks, of whom 750,000 men are reported mobilized. Italy has seven battleships of the dreadnaught type and eight older battleships, a total of fifteen. She has nine first-class cruisers, five second-class cruisers, ten third-class cruisers, five gunboats, 46 destroyers, 15 torpedo boats and 20 submarines.

FIRST ARMED CLASH OCCURS

Rome, May 24.—The first armed clash of importance was reported from Brescia. Austrian troops crossed the frontier through the Montozzo pass, about four miles north of the Toanne pass, on the western border of Tyrol. The patrol was met by troops of the Alpine chasseurs and forced to retreat after a stiff fight.

Austrians are feverishly strengthening the defenses of the Trentino. A railroad bridge near Rovereto, just north of Lake Garda, through which the frontier line runs, was blown up. Many buildings in the town have been destroyed because they would interfere with the artillery fire across the lake. The buildings which have been razed include the Convent of the Holy Cross, the civil hospital, St. Mary's church and a large tannery. Riva, the large town at the head of the lakes, about three miles from the frontier, has been evacuated.

GERMANY WILL HELP AUSTRIA

Berlin, May 24.—Upon learning of the presentation of the Italian declaration of war to the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, the German foreign office at once confirmed its allegiance to Austria and ordered the German ambassador, Prince Von Buelow, to leave Rome.

VATICAN ENVOYS ALLOWED TO STAY

Rome, May 24.—An official announcement has been made by the Italian government permitting the Austrian and German ambassadors to the Holy See and the Bavarian minister at the vatican to remain in Rome during the war.

"His majesty, the king, declares that he considers himself from tomorrow in a state of war with Austria-Hungary.

"The undersigned has the honor to make known at the same time to his excellency, the foreign minister, that passports will be placed this very day at the disposal of the imperial and royal ambassador at Rome and he will be obliged to his excellency if he will kindly have his passports handed to him. (Signed) Avarna."

ITALIANS DETAINED

Rome, May 24.—The report reaching Rome that the German and Austrian governments have prevented 20,000 Italians from leaving the territory of those countries has created a profound impression here. From the Austrian side of the frontier news reaches Udine that the Italian residents are actually being hunted and that the fate of 600 who left Trieste hoping to reach Italy is unknown, as that the greatest anxiety for their safety is felt.

At Rovigno in Istria, sixty-two Italian citizens have been arrested. These include the mayor, Signor D'Avanzo, and the secretary of the municipality. All Italian citizens residing near the fortifications of Pola have been taken into custody by the police, and at Cormons, on the frontier, 1,000 Italians, for the most part women and children, have been concentrated and prevented from leaving the territory.

OHIO BRIEFS

Brides Among Graduates.

Bellefontaine, O., May 24.—Two girls, members of the graduating class in Bellecenter, have just announced their marriages, which took place May 1. They will remain in school and graduate with the class next week. The girls are Ida May Roberts and Florence Gertrude Geiger. Miss Roberts married Thomas Montgomery of Bellefontaine and Miss Geiger married Allen Sloan of Bellecenter. The marriages took place at Covington.

Woman's Slayer Mortally Wounded.

Toledo, May 24.—The police search for William Storm, accused murderer of Mrs. Carl Yaeger, ended when Storm was found unconscious in a barn on Albert Jackson's farm in Washington township. He had been shot in the head. A pistol was found in his hands. Mrs. Yaeger was the wife of a chef at a local down-town hotel, and was shot in the left breast during a quarrel with Storm in her home.

Stand of the Gideons.

Cleveland, May 24.—The Christian Commercial Travelers' association known as the Gideons, passed resolutions against card playing, theater-going, dancing and profanity, during their twelfth annual state convention in Euclid Avenue Baptist church. They pledged their support to prohibition.

Miners' Scale Signed.

Cleveland, May 24.—Signing of the contract between the Eastern Ohio Operators' association and state and district officials of the United Mine Workers removed the last possible obstacle to commencing operation of the mines affected by a strike of 15,000 men for thirteen months.

Cars in Collision on "Dip the Dip."

Youngstown, O., May 24.—Danie Donehey, twenty, is dead, nine persons are in the hospital with broken limbs or other injuries, and nine others are suffering from severe cuts and bruises as a result of a collision between two cars on the "dip the dip" in Idora park.

Gunning For Cat: Loses Toes.

Newark, O., May 24.—Joseph Reed, thirty-seven, started out with his shotgun to end the career of a cat which had been killing his young chickens. While he was climbing over a fence the gun was discharged, and two toes on Reed's foot were blown away.

Auto Plunges Into Creek.

Bellaire, O., May 24.—Fred Schramm, nineteen, was killed and three persons were injured when an automobile in which they were riding plunged into a creek near here. The machine was owned and driven by Herman Keyser.

Conger For Collector.

Canton, O., May 24.—W. B. Conger of Cleveland has been recommended for the position of collector of customs for the Cleveland district. This district includes all of Ohio and parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

TURKISH ASSAULTS ARE THROWN BACK

Paris, May 24.—The following news regarding the Dardanelles was issued here: "Two Turkish divisions, commanded by General Liman von Sanders in person, made a furious attack against the British troops near Kala Tepe. They were completely repulsed and suffered very heavy losses. In the southern part of the peninsula our troops at certain points are only a few meters distant from the Turkish trenches, and despite the very stubborn defense of the enemy they have succeeded in making considerable progress."

The Rural School Conditions

That the management of the rural schools of this county has been plunged into politics is a fact that the people are compelled to admit with great reluctance.

There are some men on the county school board and on the various township boards of education who understand and appreciate the high principle underlying the present rural school law, they realize fully the immense amount of good that will follow a proper observance of the spirit of the law and the incalculable harm that will follow if the spirit of the law is disregarded and the rural schools of the county made subservient to politics and politicians.

The activities of the past week in rural school circles renders all denials of an unpleasant fact entirely useless. The people of the county can no longer deceive themselves; they are face to face with an unpleasant condition and the rural school system and the young girls and boys must suffer as a consequence.

Some men in authority on the county board and the township boards of education seem to have lost sight entirely of their real duty and are resorting to tactics which recall the days of the old political mass conventions, methods cast out of even political affairs.

If the school laws of the state do not provide a remedy for ills such as are oppressing the people of this county at this time they are faulty. No community should be bound hand and foot and compelled to sit idly by while so sacred an institution as the rural schools is sacrificed to politics and politicians.

The performances of the past week have aroused the ire of the great majority of the people and if there is any way to compel a right-about-face in the present tendency that remedy is going to be sought.

There are men now engaged in the rural school embroilie who seem to have lost their heads completely and are willing to resort to almost anything that will serve as an aid to them in consumating their political purposes. Men who are good citizens and at heart know and appreciate the importance of maintaining the rural schools on a plane high above politics have, figuratively speaking, rolled up their sleeves and plunged in pell mell regardless of cost to the people, effect on the rural school system of the county or the loss to the rising generation.

These men should be brought to a realization of this mistake if possible and if not they should be succeeded in the managing boards by men who will demean themselves as the spirit of the law and the interests of the people demand.

It is with sincere regret that this paper calls attention to existing conditions and sounds a warning of the consequences sure to follow if the unmistakable drift of affairs continues, but the rights of the public make silence inconsistent with duty.

These men who have, apparently, lost their bearing entirely should call a halt, consult the spirit of the law in the bright light of public duty and steer their future course away from the shoals of politics or disaster will certainly come to the rural schools of the county and this people will not receive the benefits which are theirs under the law and the country lose, immeasurably, in public esteem throughout the state.

There is no reason why the rural schools of Fayette county should not stand at the top and they will if the men who are now playing politics with the schools will but realize their mistake and get back to the straight path.

Conditions are now little short of a disgrace.

National Defense Impossible With Our Present Military Forces

Task of America Is to Create One People Out of Many

By Rev. EDWARD A. STEINER, Professor of Applied Christianity, Grinnell College, Iowa

If you consider that you are properly protected in your commercial and business pursuits and in social intercourse, why then it is of little concern to army men whether the army should be larger. But with England able to build and put the Dreadnoughts and other classes of fighting craft on the seas in the quick time that we know she can and with a similar situation in other foreign countries there is a good chance that our navy would be licked if we happened to go to war.

THE NAVY IS OUR FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE. IF IT SHOULD CRUMBLE BEFORE AN ENEMY, GOD HELP US!

If we assume that the navy was licked you can readily see how little we would have to fall back upon with only eighty thousand men in the regular army, scattered all over the country from the state of Washington to Florida, and with between thirty thousand and forty thousand of the regulars detached for duty in our outlying possessions.

True merriment may be distinguished from false by the fact that it bears reflection. We can think of it with pleasure next day and next week.

"It says here that an archaeologist has unearthed a loaf of bread in some ruins in Egypt," said Mrs. Gabb. "The loaf is said to be 3,000 years old, and it weighs sixty pounds."

Luke McLuke Says

One reason why poker is the great American game is because you do not have to wait until the next day and get a newspaper to see whether you won or lost.

Women do not keep up with the news, but they do the best they can. A woman can always tell you on Thursday what was in the papers on Monday.

Some marriages result so happily that the wife judges the husband's true worth by the amount of insurance he carries.

Maybe if a woman would talk less her husband would talk more and she wouldn't have to do so much guessing.

It is hard to make some people believe that a falsehood is as ornery as a plain lie.

The name of love is a grand thing. But it takes a weekly pay envelope to keep the pot boiling after you get married.

The trouble with a lot of the suffragettes is that they carry their platform in their faces.

Why is it that when a man buys a mechanical tumblebug on wheels he thinks he has to wear a leather cap and gloves and a pair of goggles or people wouldn't think he had anything on a Vanderbilt cup winner?

Do not complain because the lad who was graduated from college had to take a $12 a week job selling groceries. He might have developed into a genius, and then his family would have had to support him.

If the Smithsonian Institute ever intends to make a collection of American stuffed idiots it had better get busy now before some of the state legislatures adjourn and the specimens scatter to their native barnyards.

If a man's fingers are crooked from hard work he is ashamed of them. But if he got them crooked playing baseball he is mighty proud of them.

What has become of the oldest Odd Fellow who used to die every now and then?

Cheer up! What you consider bad luck would be regarded as good luck by some people.

Even when you find a woman buttoning her shoe with a hairpin she will deny that she ever goes from one extreme to the other.

DEMOCRATS TO CONVENE

COLUMBUS, May 24.—Legislators will have not much more than gotten back to their homes after adjournment this week until Democratic state committeemen will have assembled in Columbus to consider calling referendums on the most important laws enacted.

It was decided last January to defend all the big Cox laws against Republican attack. The Republican solons have made a number of assaults upon the Democratic measures.

The Warnes tax law was torn asunder, the Greenlund liquor license law was decentralized, the agricultural commission act was dumped overboard, the election law separating the state and national tickets was sidetracked, the civil service act was thrown in the discard and the Democratic congressional gerrymander is in for repeal.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON DRAWS LARGE AUDIENCE

Ushering in the High school commencement week was the Baccalaureate Sermon, of Sunday night, accompanied by services beautiful and impressive, at the High school auditorium.

It was the first time the auditorium had been in use for such purpose, and large as it is, the immense concourse of people assembled taxed its capacity.

The stage showed most elaborate and artistic decorating, with the class colors, silver and scarlet, prominently employed. Rising above a hedge of green and white syringa, which bordered the entire stage, were huge bunches of brilliant red peonies, strikingly effective against the green.

Seated in the rear of the stage were the two Glee Clubs, minus the Seniors, who assisted in the evening's music.

It was an imposing body of forty-seven dignified Seniors in cap and gown that followed the lead of Supt. McClain and Principal Probasco, down the aisles to center seats reserved with the blue and white ribbons. After them came the High school corps of teachers and members of the Board of Education.

Miss Ruth Reid played the Senior march.

Rev. Eugene Prosser, of the Episcopal church and Rev. Wm. Boynton Gage, of the First Presbyterian church, conducted the opening services, to which Miss Ada Woodward added a beautiful solo, "Behold the Master Passes By," Hammond.

Rev. A. W. West of the First Baptist church, delivered a splendid Baccalaureate, forceful and to the point. The following excerpts are culled from it.

The Supreme Quest.

Realizing in a measure the importance of this occasion the speaker had but one purpose in view, to call attention to that wonderful character, that powerful personality, that greatest of teachers, Jesus the Christ.

He said in part: "We understand that whenever the 'Man of Galilee' spoke to the people it was not to speculate as a mere philosopher, nor to give an exhibition of his great knowledge, but, coming as the incarnation of truth, he pointed out the path of life along which all who would might travel with a new vision, a new purpose, and a new power.

"He understands now as he did then that his creatures of earth grow weary in searching for the things that enlarge and enrich life and satisfy the soul. His great heart is no less moved now than it was then with compassion for the multitude who, failing to put first things first, fret and worry over secondary matters. Tonight we have a group of young, ambitious, expectant people who are ready and eager to go forth to conquer and possess. To them I bring the all-important message to the Master, 'seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.'

"What is this kingdom and this righteousness? With winning grace the Master opens the door and ushers us into his great picture gallery wherein he makes plain the true nature and beauty of the kingdom he would bestow upon us. From what he there reveals to us we are led to believe that the kingdom is an enlightened, organized, consecrated community leading to a universal peace, a complete harmonious activity, and an eternal progress.

"The noblest work is that of giving the light of truth to those who sit in darkness, of causing the desert to blossom like the rose, of bringing order out of chaos. The shining light, the growing seed, the opening bud, the coming summer, are symbolic of progress. The enlightened, unfolding mind, the growing character, makes possible the coming of the kingdom of God.

"The kingdom requires organization. The mistake is sometimes made of thinking that organization is power when it is merely the machinery through which power may act. In the kingdom there must be vitalized, energized organization.

Consecration to highest principle must not be overlooked.

"We are hearing much about war, slaughter, and destruction these days. The heart of the world is wrung with grief. The citizen of the kingdom is a soldier of peace. His task is a stupendous one, even that of bringing about universal peace and a complete, harmonious activity among mankind.

"How can this be done? Legislation will never be able to effect it. The kingdom of God does not come by force. An artist, in order that he might paint to life whatever subject he chose, sold himself to evil.

NAMED SALES MANAGER BIG BOOK CONCERN

Mr. H. D. Chaffin, for the past two years traveling salesman for the Columbus Blank Book and Manufacturing Company, has been promoted to the position of general sales manager of the company, and his work from now on will be in the main office at Columbus.

The promotion comes as a recognition of the splendid ability which Mr. Chaffin posses, and which has long since placed him at the head of the corps of salesmen sent out by the concern, as possessing greater salesmanship than his fellow workers.

The promotion, while requiring more of Mr. Chaffin's time in Columbus, will not necessitate a residence in Columbus, and Washington citizens will be pleased to know that Mr. and Mrs. Chaffin will continue to reside in this city as heretofore.

Mr. Chaffin has always proven a man of high efficiency in all positions held, and it was largely due to his tireless efforts and ability that the famous Imperial Degree Staff owes its existence.

CONVENTION OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Boys and girls of the teen age will play a more important part in the State Sunday School Convention to be held at Zanesville, June 22, 23 and 24, than ever before in the history of that organization, according to information given out from state headquarters in Columbus.

Preceding the regular Sunday School Convention, on Monday, June 21, there will be a boys' congress and a girls' congress, each to be attended by 500 delegates from various parts of the state. Norman V. Peale, of Bellefontaine, president of the boys' congress, will preside, and Miss Lola Thomas of Dayton, will preside at the girls' meeting. On Tuesday there will be a joint session of the boys and girls, for the first time in the history of the state.

During the year, boys' congresses have been held in 39 counties of the state, and girls' congresses in 25 counties. The movement among the boys is a year older than that among the girls, and shows a growth of 15 meetings during the past year. The girl congress movement shows a similar gain.

Zanesville has arranged to give free lodging and breakfast to 500 girls and 500 boys who will attend these congresses. The special feature will be the friendship suppers to be held on the evening of June 21. At 11 o'clock on Tuesday, the joint congresses of boys and girls will appear in a demonstration before the state Sunday School Convention which will be in session at Memorial Hall, the largest auditorium in Zanesville.

SECOND STORY

I.

Some specially acute torment must be reserved for the window dresser of a great city's shops. By caravan and boat and rail, by camel, mule and horse come the treasures of the world into his cunning hands. Lofts and factories stifle human lives without stint that the window dresser may allure the throng.

It was particularly charming pair of slippers, and the identical shade of ribbon she desired that caught and held Rita Deane's eyes. Of course, purchase was out of the question. Since earliest remembrance her father had drummed into her pretty head, that personal vanity was the deadliest of sins. And besides—Mrs. Sharpe, Reverend Deane's housekeeper, held tightly to her arm.

Surreptitiously, Rita fumbled the money in her purse. Yes, she had enough—just enough.

She lifted her eyes to another window on the seventh floor of the great office building across the street, where James White, her fiance, transacted the affairs of his huge estate. She could see him dimly, pacing up and down in his office, now and then glancing at a letter in his hand.

She had heard something of the contents of that letter from her father before he had dispatched it. In fact he had read it to her, after an exceedingly painful scene. She had rebelled at being obliged to listen to the harsh dictum: "You, a rich backslider in my church, marry my daughter, Rita? Never! How you met her puzzles me, as I have always carefully guarded her."

Yes, the lines of that letter had seared themselves like letters of fire upon her brain.

Again she turned to the window. Some sudden impulse of insurrection frothed within her soul.

"Look! Look!" she cried, excitedly, pointing toward the end of the line of blocked traffic.

Curiosity won. As Mrs. Sharpe's iron fingers relaxed upon their grip, Rita Deane's feet glided swiftly inside the doors of the shop. It was a full five minutes before she returned, innocently assuming an air of injury at the housekeeper's reproaches for her disappearance. The slippers and the ribbon hidden beneath her little jacket more than made up for any punishment that could ever be hers.

Gladly Rita submitted to the clutch of the dragon housekeeper. The more quickly she reached home the sooner would she see the enchanting transformation the finery made in her appearance.

Letter or no letter, dictation or no dictation, she would see James again.

Once in her own room she studied her reflection in the mirror, surprised to find that the sins had left no mark upon her pretty face.

Cautiously, a bit fearfully, she loosed the masses of her hair from their tight braids, binding them with the splendid ribbon, reveling in the effect its contrast worked in her appearance.

And then the slippers!

Carried away with her delight, with this new sensation, this realization of her charms, her feet—those beautifully shod feet—began to perform strange capers, began to steal away her sense of caution. They moved in gay, spirited steps, faster, ever faster, until the dancing girl seemed more like a festive wood-sprite pris-

White smiled happily to himself as, lost in the pictures painted by the flames in the library grate, he visualized the happy hours that had been his since that night in the comfortable, little parsonage when Rita Deane became Mrs. James White.

A man worth while, a young man whose shoulders had not bowed beneath the weight of handling great wealth unloaded upon him immediately he quit college, a man submerged in business, at the age of thirty, he found the happiness which his nature had craved when he soon wearied of the laborious efforts at winning pleasure in the set in which his riches had placed him.

AH! FINE FOR CORNS

A painless remedy, sure it is—just paint it on a sore corn tonight and tomorrow your feet will feel like new.

Nothing ever made absorbs pain out of a corn like Putnam's Extractor. It dissolves the hard crust, acts quickly, never fails, and above all, it brings the troubler out by the roots.

You'll be satisfied with Putnam's Extractor because it's an old time remedy that is just as represented. Dealers everywhere sell this specific for warts, callouses and foot lumps. Costs only a quarter. Advt.

He could not exactly analyze the sensations of delight it had given him to please her. And she was so easily pleased.

And never an emergency but Mrs. James White met it firmly and controlled it. The Rita Deane of Mary-Janes and shabby attire had assumed leadership of the youngest and gayest set of the city.

Arm in arm they moved down the long, winding gravel path to the garage. Rita was prattling over the details of a novel entertainment she purposed giving the following week.

His eyes wandered dreamily over the level lawns, the beautiful gardening, the gorgeous flowers, then halted, and a tender, almost longing expression deepened them, as he watched his chauffeur playing with his baby. He glanced furtively at Rita, almost fiercely trying to find some reflection in her eyes of the light dwelling in that of Mary, the chauffeur's wife, as she took the child from her husband, who stood at attention, listening to his mistress' instructions.

And then Billie crowed. That is, it might be called a crow.

For just a moment the whole world seemed spinning about before Jim White's bewildered eyes. He rather suspected that the fat, tiny finger clamped about the one he had timorously thrust appealingly toward the arbitrary infant might have had something to do with this astonishing state of affairs. As from a long ways off he heard the gurglings rise into a penetrating wail. And then the laugh of Mary.

"He wants to go to you, Mr. White. I never knew him to make up with strangers—with anyone before. He wants you—"

Jim laughed, laughed to conceal the choking that constricted his throat.

"I'm afraid I'll drop him," he laughed, even as his arms awkwardly cupped to receive the child.

"Drop him! You hold him just like he was your own!"

Jim White's heart almost stopped beating, even as his arms clung tighter to the one who had come to him. Perfectly satisfied, Billie was making a closer study of this man-creature he had decided to adopt. Unwinkingly his eyes studied the face that looked down at him with such fierce hungering. And then, slowly, ever so slowly, his arms moved up along the great chest and a pair of rather sticky hands crept along the cheeks and finally the arms clasped about the neck, while the eyes closed gently and Billie slept.

"Well, I never saw the beat—Sam, I wish you'd look at—"

Mary caught the annoyed expression on Rita's face as she turned and spoke to her husband. He did not hear her, wrapt in his eager study of the slumbering baby's face. She felt a sudden fierce jealousy consuming her, as she caught the expression of this man she seemed unacquainted with, this man who held a child to his breast so perfectly, with such an expression of unalloyed happiness upon his face. Something dawned upon her, with that intuition which seems given women to amend for a certain lack of logic, which her husband would never have found out—that the perfect happiness that had been hers through this man was due to the paternal instinct in him that made him delight in treating her as a child, to be humored and pampered and spoiled.

"Come, Jim," she said softly, strivng beautifully to make her voice sympathetic, "we must hurry now."

Reluctantly he returned Billie to the mother. Rita noticed that for a few steps he moved on tip-toe, as though fearful of waking the child. Diffidently, yet with a certain curious firmness, he led her to the library, seating her in his favorite chair and perching himself boyishly upon the arm of it, his arms about her.

"No wonder Sam's got a good disposition," he said finally.

She braced herself instinctively.

"I sometimes wonder if home can be home at all without a baby," he murmured, more to the sympathetic flames than to her. "I remember how my mother always thought of me as her baby, even after I was in college."

Rita leaned forward, drawing his hand about her neck and fondling it soothingly.

"Don't you ever think—Rita, don't you ever wish there was a baby in our house?" His voice was low, his words bit stumbling now, as though he found difficulty expressing himself. "Wouldn't it sort of make things happier and—"

She forced a laugh to her lips, a gay, tender laugh even as her fingers twined fiercely about his own.

"But, Jim, I don't want any children just now. I want to enjoy myself, to see something of happiness. Sometimes," she tempered the blow, "sometimes I think, Jim, that I'm little more than a child myself. I've been caged and starved so long that I hardly seem grown up yet. Don't you understand, Jim?"

She fought against showing her hurt as he sharply drew away his cheek from her own, then pressed it close once more.

"Wait till Billie puts those sticky arms about your neck, Rita. Then—then you'll know," he called back.

III.

There was a look of triumph upon Mrs. Sharpe's vinegary face as, announcing herself into the Reverend Deane's study with a triumphant rustle of the newspaper in her hand, she stepped beside him. Slowly he lifted his leaden eyes from the sermon upon which he had been working, shrinking away a bit before that expression he had come to know so well.

He was frightened of this woman, this woman who seemed to read his thoughts, his heartaches; who took such delight in probing at his wounds.

"Yes, Mrs. Sharpe?" he queried warily, as she thrust the newspaper into his hands with a waspish sweep, waiting beside him while his eyes readily found the leader that signalized another escapade of Mrs. James White, the daughter that had been his.

WHO PAYS?

"A public place—" her breath came with a little hiss at the insult.

"I mean you have made no home for me here and your life belongs to society and is wasted in the pursuit of pleasure."

Cold, passionless, haughty externally, she allowed the maid to coif her hair, then dismissed her.

Swiftly she was transported down the years, and found herself once more a bride, standing before a garage. It was her own garage. And it was her husband beside her who held a baby awkwardly in his arms.

It was her husband who perched upon the arm of her chair, a great human emptiness in his voice, a mighty yearning on the face of him as he pleaded with her for the rounded complete home she refused to give him.

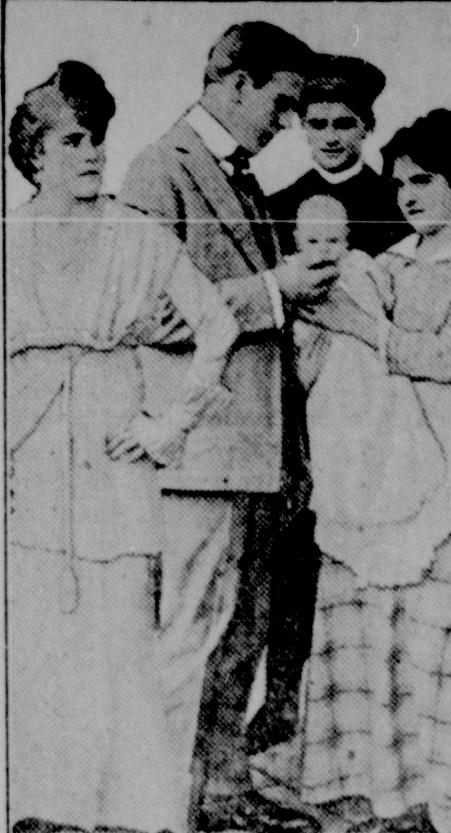

A rustle sounded beside her and she started, afraid to look about, for fear lest she disturb the vision that had risen so clearly before her.

Slowly she turned, looking into a child's inquiring eyes, the eyes of the baby her husband had held that day.

"Don't be afraid, lady," Billie said encouragingly. "I won't hurt you."

ELECTED A JUDGE.

Rita Sneers at Her Husband's Love For Children.

A Little laugh, half hysterical, sprang from her lips at the infinitesimal assurance. Then, in the relief of the moment, impulsively she reached out and grasped the friendly arms of the child that were extended toward her.

V.

"No, I won't hurt you. I'm not a burglar. I'm Billie," the youngster asserted when he had been sufficiently welcomed.

"I know," she nodded brightly. "You just came to pay me a call, didn't you?"

Billie frowned, cogitating deeply.

"No—o, not 'zactly that. Mamma went to sleep and I just came here. I come to play with the boy. Where is the boy?" he started suddenly erect in her arms, looking about eagerly.

"What boy, Billie?" She knew in advance what the answer would be, yet could not refrain from baring her soul to the hurt.

"Why, the boy—your boy—the boy what belongs here."

"But there is no boy here." She wondered at herself, purposely letting the lash of this innocent child's tongue thus scourge her.

"No boy! Why, I thought there was a boy in every house—just like home. I'm the boy in our home." Some quick instinct caused him to reach out and clasp his arms about her neck, the neck of this beautiful creature whose eyes were so sad and longing. "Did he get lost?" he whispered sympathetically.

"No—o, Billie. Yes," she suddenly smiled through the tears that sprang to her eyes. "Yes he got lost a little bit. He just wandered on the way. Don't you understand, Billie?"

"Like mamma will think I got lost when I ain't lost at all. I know where I am."

Together they laughed delightedly at the merry joke they played, this grownup and this child.

"Why, lady, you're crying! What you crying for?" Billie tugged a bit tighter at her neck, roughing her perfectly coiffured hair in his gusty sympathy. "Ain't you happy, lady?"

"That's why I'm crying, Billie—I'm so happy," she murmured.

With a sign of contentment at this somewhat hazy explanation, Billie curled up in her lap like the healthy little animal he was and proceeded to go to sleep.

Tenderly, an hour later, with a light in her eyes which no one had ever seen there before, she relinquished her precious burden to the mother, smilingly pleading forgiveness for the sleeping truant. And then she turned to meet her husband, just stepping from the car.

Linking her arm in his, she led him to the library, designedly selecting the same chair to seat him in which he, on another day, had seated her; designedly perching upon the arm, toyng with his hair while she struggled for words, words that were the harder to utter because of the cold, puzzled look he gave her.

"I'm sorry, Jim," she whispered, finally. "It hasn't been home, has it?"

He did not answer, staring moodily into the leaping flames.

Rita followed the direction of his eyes. It had all seemed so easy when Billie was in her lap, the breaking down of her barriers, the complete surrender that she might reconquer this man's love and cling to it tighter.

"Oh, I wish Billie were here now," she cried, a little catch in her voice. "Then I could make you understand."

"Billie!" He turned toward her inquiringly and something in her eyes confused him, set his pulses dancing, made everything blurry before him.

"Don't you remember, Jim? Billie—Sam and Mary's baby. Oh, I've had such an adventure. Billie's been visiting me—Billie came over to play with the little boy in our house. He went to sleep in my arms, Jim, went to sleep with his arms about my neck, and they weren't sticky a bit—well, only a little bit. He wanted to play, Jim, with that boy that belongs here and I told him the boy was lost, just a little bit lost. Oh, Jim, don't you—can't you understand—won't you help me—hurt for him?"

He leaped to his feet, his arms flung wide as though to clasp her to him. Blushing rosily, but with the gaiety of trickling laughter upon her lips, she caught the expression in his eyes and retreated from him, all eager to be caught that she might lay her face against that shoulder she had regained, yet with the maiden instinct for flight. Back-

back and Jim laughingly advancing toward her, laughing with a curious sobbing sound intermingled with it. And then he halted, the shadow of impending catastrophe gripping its icy hand upon him, freezing his blood. His lips uttered a cry of warning, even as Rita's shrilled forth one of terror and appeal. The ripping of lace sounded as her heel caught in a ruffle of her boudoir gown, tripping her. The heavier sound of falling portieres as she dragged them down in clutching for support against the fall.

Thud—thud—James White knew that horrid sound, the thudding of his wife's beautiful body upon the stairs down which she was hurled, would never quit his ears. Thud—thud—a crash, as she brought up against the pilasters on the main floor, and lay there, very still, her white face upturned toward his own.

VI

Doctor Judd gently withdrew himself from the clutching fingers of the Reverend Deane.

"The operation was a complete success and she is almost able to be about," he said, then, as the old man turned away with a sign of relief: "But I think you had better come with me today. She may need you now."

He did not mind the coldness of his son-in-law's reception, did not mind the hesitancy of his daughter's kiss. He deserved all this. He only wished to be with her, to help her in her hour of misery, the misery he could feel running as an undercurrent beneath Doctor Judd's cheery words.

"Yes, little girl, you came through the operation nobly. It was a complete success. I didn't think you had the strength for such a battle as you put up."

Rita blushed, looking meaningfully up at her husband.

"I had just gained untold strength before the fall."

"Well, it worked wonders. It saved your life, Mrs. White. And now in a few days everything will be as it was before except the happiness of motherhood can never."

Rita Lay Still as Death After Her Fall Downstairs.

Like tiny threads of steel her fingers gripped his wrist. He nodded, avoiding the horrified expression in those eyes. She did not weep—he only prayed that she would. She merely stared stonily into space. Her husband tenderly placed his hand upon her hair. She did not look at him. The Reverend Deane was upon his knees, fondling her icy fingers, but she seemed not to be aware of his presence. Doctor Judd motioned them from the room.

"She must be alone until she recovers from the shock," he explained.

Alone?

Always alone she would be. Always alone with the ghosts. Always alone, listening for the patter of baby feet through the place. Always alone, searching for the "lost" ones she never was to find, though she knew her life would be consecrated to the search.

Stonily she stared; eagerly she listened. And no tears would come, would ever come to soothe and balm the soul of her.

D. T. & I. WILL NOT STAND IN WAY OF UNION STATION

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF D. T. & I. OFFICIALS AND BUSINESS MEN HELD THIS AFTERNOON—OFFICIALS WILLING TO DO EVERYTHING POSSIBLE FOR WASHINGTON, AND OLD WATER TANK GOES WITHIN 30 DAYS.

Never before has a more cordial meeting between local business men and railroad officials been held in this city than that of Monday afternoon, when more than a half score of officials and some 25 business men met at the Y. M. C. A. and discussed affairs pertaining to the city and D. T. & I.

Mr. Wm. Worthington presided over the meeting, and a number of the officials and several citizens spoke.

President J. M. Kurn, of the D. T. & I. system, was first called upon. He said the road is now considering the matter of installing high class motor cars instead of the steam passenger trains; that the road was putting back into the physical improvement of the system every dollar earned. He said the officials were open to suggestion and willing to do all in their power to help give perfect satisfaction to local citizens.

Hon. C. A. Reid responded, stating that Washington citizens had a much better opinion of the D. T. & I. than previously, and that only two things were now wanted: First, the D. T. & I. unite with the B. & O. and C. H. & D. in erecting a union station, and that the old water tank be torn away and a new one erected elsewhere.

He said the B. & O. was not unwilling to consider the proposal if the D. T. & I. went into the proposition. After looking at a plan of the proposed change, Mr. Kurn stated that while it was unfortunate that the matter had not been taken up before the D. T. & I. built its new station, that the road wouldn't stand in the way of the new station, and that the old water tank would be removed within thirty days and a new one take its place.

Other officials were then called upon, and all responded with interesting speeches.

The meeting adjourned near three o'clock, with hearty good feeling on the part of both visitors and local citizens.

The party, which came by special train, was composed of J. M. Kurn, president; J. H. Fraser, General Superintendent; G. W. Thompson, Supt. Trans.; W. B. Groseclose, Traffic manager; H. A. Fidler, general freight agent; J. A. Schuman, freight agent; J. E. Henderson, commercial agent; W. A. Osborn, treasurer; W. L. Williams, general attorney; T. D. Herlichiffe, auditor.

GERMAN EMPIRE DECLARES WAR AGAINST ITALY; SURPRISE RAIDS ON COAST TOWNS ARE REPULSED

Venice and Other Adriatic Coast Towns are Attacked by Austrian Warships and Fleet of Aeroplanes Which Are Quickly Repulsed by The Watchful Italians.

GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN MINISTERS TO ROME RECALLED AS MADNESS SPREADS THROUGH BALKAN STATES

680,000 Teutons Ready For Rush Upon Italy or To Repulse Assaults—Italy to Work Hand-in-Hand With Allied Powers—Austrian Minister Resigns—Russ on Offensive

By Associated Press.

London, May 24.—A dispatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph Company says a telegram from Basel states that the Wolff Agency announces Germany has declared war against Italy and recalled Prince von Buelow, her ambassador at Rome.

Rome, May 24.—Official announcement was made here today that Austrian aeroplanes have attacked the government arsenal at Venice. The aeroplanes were driven off.

Porto, Corsini, Ancona, Barletta and Gesi also were attacked.

It is apparent from the foregoing dispatch that Austrian aeroplanes have swept virtually the entire east coast of Italy. From Venice they have made their way south to Barletta, a distance of 350 miles.

London, May 24.—A Reuters dispatch from Madrid says German and Austro-Hungarian representatives at the Italian courts at the Vatican are leaving Rome tonight, having intrusted the interests of their countries to the Spanish ambassador in Rome.

The Hague, May 24.—From information reaching the Hague it is understood that the Germans and Austrians have concentrated approximately 680,000 men on the Italian frontier.

They have occupied strategic positions in order to meet an attack or to attempt to strike the first blow in an endeavor to dishearten the new combatants at the beginning of the campaign.

Paris, May 24.—An attack by Austrian warships on the eastern coast of Italy, along the Adriatic, is announced in an official communication from the Italian War Office, transmitted to Paris by the correspondent of the Havas Agency.

It is said the Austrian warships were forced to withdraw after a short cannonade.

At Ancona, where an attempt was made to blow up the railroad, slight damage was done by the bombs from the aeroplanes. The Austrian aeroplanes, the report says, were attacked by Italian aeroplanes, anti-aircraft, artillery and a dirigible.

A part of the statement says: "It was foreseen that, on the declaration of war, offensive action would occur against our Adriatic coast, with the purpose of seeking moral effect rather than attaining a military purpose."

personal liberties, especially in regard to public meetings.

A day of suspense, awaiting the declaration of war, found all Italy eager for the conflict. Thousands of volunteers have proffered their services. Volunteers 18 years of age or older will be accepted, if physically fit for the duration of the war.

Intense indignation has been aroused by reports that Italians have been ill treated along the Austrian and German frontiers. A trainload of Italians are reported to have been driven into a field near Goritz, to remain all night in a heavy rain without food or shelter. Several children are said to have died from the exposure. Women in the party were allowed to cross the frontier the next day, but all men were detained.

Reports that Baron Burian, the Austrian foreign minister, has resigned are generally believed here. His reported fall is attributed to failure of negotiations with Italy.

Newspaper reports deny Vienna statements charging that Italy did not adhere to the principles of the triple alliance treaty. One paper says the position of Italy became intolerable when Austrian and German aggression against Serbia began.

Amsterdam, May 24.—Patriotic manifestations reached a climax in Vienna last night, according to a telegram received here from the Austrian capital.

After Italy's declaration of war and the manifesto of Emperor Francis Joseph, calling upon the army, navy and all his people for patriotic devotion, had been published in special editions crowds gathered in all parts of the city.

Thousands of residents paraded the streets, singing patriotic songs and cheering the emperor.

Indignation against Italy found expression in cries of "down with the traitor."

Town councils of Trieste and Geritz have been dissolved. Newspapers and Germany, expressing the belief that the Germans would declare war as soon as official news had been received of Italy's declaration against Austria-Hungary.

The cabinet council did not consider military questions, as they onstrations in favor of the war con- have been intrusted to the general tinue throughout Italy. service in the army and navy.

Owing to the large number of men now under arms there is a shortage packages. The decree also restricts workmen. In some cases women are doing work formerly performed by men. In several cities women are employed on street cars.

Petrograd, May 24.—The Austro-German forces in Galicia now have assumed the defensive and their active operations consist chiefly of counter attacks, according to an official statement issued last night from the headquarters of the Russian general staff.

Slight progress is claimed on the left bank of the river San and the claim is made that all assaults by the Austro-German troops in the southeastern theater of operations were repulsed.

2,000 ALLIES FALL SUNDAY

Constantinople, May 24.—Official announcement was made here today that an attack by the French and British forces yesterday on the Turkish positions, near Seddul Bahr, at the southern end of Gallipoli peninsula, had been repulse. It is stated the allies left 2,000 dead on the field.

BOILER LETS GO--5 DEAD

Bordentown, N. J., May 24.—Five persons were killed here today when the boiler of a sand dredge on the Delaware river blew up. A woman and two children were among the killed.

AUSTRIA LOSES VALUABLE SHIPS

Rome, May 24.—The value of Austrian and German ships now in Italian ports, which have become prizes of war, is estimated at more than 100,000,000 francs ($20,000,000).

RUSS LOSE MAN OF WAR

Berlin, May 24.—The Overseas News Agency today gave out the following: "According to a Bucharest dispatch the Russian armored man-of-war Wyntelimon has been sunk, with 1400 men, in the Black Sea.

The foregoing evidently refers to the Russian battleship Panteleimon. This warship, whose destruction is said to have caused the loss of 1400 lives, is put down in naval reference books as having a complement of 740 men. In time of war this number might be increased.

WILSON URGES CLOSER UNION OF AMERICAS

By Associated Press.

Washington, May 24.—President Wilson, speaking at the opening of the pan-American financial conference here today, expressed the hope that the Americas might show the world the path to peace.

The president was loudly applauded as he entered the hall in the pan-American building, where the meeting was being held. On the platform were members of the cabinet, while the audience included many high government officials, in addition to the representatives of South and Central American countries.

The president declared the people of the Americas were not trying to

CALL ISSUED TO ITALIANS IN AMERICA

By Associated Press.

New York, May 24.—A call to all Italian citizens and American citizens of Italian birth to enroll for service in the Italian army was published in the newspapers of that language here today. It was signed by the Italian consul general and was addressed to all men between the ages of 19 and 29.

The military law of Italy holds that all men of Italian birth are subject to call for service in the army, regardless of whether they have taken out citizenship papers in the United States.

It is estimated there are 125,000 Italians of military age in this city. More than 4,000 have enrolled.

ITALY JOINS IN BIG WAR

Formal Declaration Issued By Rome and the First Serious Clashes Occur on Border—Roumania Expected to Follow Italy's Lead Within a Short Time.

Rome, May 24.—Italy declared war against Austria Sunday afternoon.

King Victor Emmanuel's proclamation fixed May 24 as the date for the opening of hostilities.

The Duca d'Avarna, the Italian ambassador at Vienna, was instructed to present the declaration to Baron Burian, the Austrian premier, and leave at once for home.

When the public became aware of the fact that hesitation was at an end and the Italian government definitely committed to make war for the redemption of the territory inhabited by Italians and under Austrian rule, the enthusiasm of the people knew no bounds.

While the general mobilization order will bring about 3,000,000 men to the colors within a month, it is known that Italy will start the war with about 760,000 first line troops. At the outbreak of the European war the Italian army consisted of 300,000 men, the classes with the colors being those of 1891, 1892 and 1893. After the war started two more classes, including about 220,000 men, joined the colors. Various other changes recently made under order from General Zupelli, the minister of war, brought the strength up to 760,000 at present.

It is likely that the army will be under the direct command of General Caneva, who led the Italian forces in the conquest of Tripoli, or General Count Cadorna, the chief of the general staff. In case the military operations call for a division of the forces into two units, each of these officers will have command of an army.

All Called to Colors.

Notices signed by King Victor Emmanuel called to the colors all men belonging to the army classes from 1876 to 1895. In other words, every Italian of military age has been called out. The fact caused no excitement, as general mobilization has been expected since the action of parliament on Tursday.

The carabiniers, sharpshooters, aviation staff, transport and medical corps will be called at once. The infantry of the territorial militia of the five classes from 1877 to 1881 will be called to the colors tomorrow. The remainder of the reserve forces will not be called until June 1.

Pope Benedict has ordered the hospice of Santa Marta and the six seminaries, including the German college and the South American, converted into hospitals and placed at the disposal of the Red Cross for wounded soldiers.

The army authorities have taken control of the railroads and all vehicles, wagons and automobiles, as well as all the horses in the kingdom, have been commandeered. The censorship in Italy is much more strict than in France and England. It has been announced that no newspaper correspondents will be permitted to accompany the army.

Roumania's entry into the war is now believed to be a question of a day or two, following Italy's declaration. The fears felt in Bucharest that Bulgaria might seize the opportunity to make an attack on Roumania have been allayed by the official declaration that Bulgaria will keep her hands off. It is not considered improbable, too, that Bulgaria will invade Turkey in the hope of winning back Adrianople, taken from her as a result of the second Balkan war.

WAR STRENGTH OF ITALIANS

New York, May 24.—The total war strength of Italy's army is 3,330,202 men of all ranks, of whom 750,000 men are reported mobilized. Italy has seven battleships of the dreadnaught type and eight older battleships, a total of fifteen. She has nine first-class cruisers, five second-class cruisers, ten third-class cruisers, five gunboats, 46 destroyers, 15 torpedo boats and 20 submarines.

FIRST ARMED CLASH OCCURS

Rome, May 24.—The first armed clash of importance was reported from Brescia. Austrian troops crossed the frontier through the Montozzo pass, about four miles north of the Toanie pass, on the western border of Tyrol. The patrol was met by troops of the Alpine chasseurs and forced to retreat after a stiff fight.

Austrians are feverishly strengthening the defenses of the Trentino. A railroad bridge near Rovereto, just north of Lake Garda, through which the frontier line runs, was blown up. Many buildings in the town have been destroyed because they would interfere with the artillery fire across the lake. The buildings which have been razed include the Convent of the Holy Cross, the civil hospital, St. Mary's church and a large tannery. Riva, the large town at the head of the lakes, about three miles from the frontier, has been evacuated.

GERMANY WILL HELP AUSTRIA

Berlin, May 24.—Upon learning of the presentation of the Italian declaration of war to the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, the German foreign office at once confirmed its allegiance to Austria and ordered the German ambassador, Prince Von Buelow, to leave Rome.

VATICAN ENVOYS ALLOWED TO STAY

Rome, May 24.—An official announcement has been made by the Italian government permitting the Austrian and German ambassadors to the Holy See and the Bavarian minister at the vatican to remain in Rome during the war.

The Rural School Conditions

That the management of the rural schools of this county has been plunged into politics is a fact that the people are compelled to admit with great reluctance.

There are some men on the county school board and on the various township boards of education who understand and appreciate the high principle underlying the present rural school law; they realize fully the immense amount of good that will follow a proper observance of the spirit of the law and the incalculable harm that will follow if the spirit of the law is disregarded and the rural schools of the county made subservient to politics and politicians.

The activities of the past week in rural school circles renders all denials of an unpleasant fact entirely useless. The people of the county can no longer deceive themselves; they are face to face with an unpleasant condition and the rural school system and the young girls and boys must suffer as a consequence.

Some men in authority on the county board and the township boards of education seem to have lost sight entirely of their real duty and are resorting to tactics which recall the days of the old political mass conventions, methods cast out of even political affairs.

If the school laws of the state do not provide a remedy for ills such as are oppressing the people of this county at this time they are faulty. No community should be bound hand and foot and compelled to sit idly by while so sacred an institution as the rural schools is sacrificed to politics and politicians.

The performances of the past week have aroused the ire of the great majority of the people and if there is any way to compel a right-about-face in the present tendency that remedy is going to be sought.

There are men now engaged in the rural school embroilie who seem to have lost their heads completely and are willing to resort to almost anything that will serve as an aid to them in consummating their political purposes. Men who are good citizens and at heart know and appreciate the importance of maintaining the rural schools on a plane high above politics have, figuratively speaking, rolled up their sleeves and plunged in pell-mell regardless of cost to the people, effect on the rural school system of the county or the loss to the rising generation.

These men should be brought to a realization of this mistake if possible and if not they should be succeeded in the managing boards by men who will demean themselves as the spirit of the law and the interests of the people demand.

It is with sincere regret that this paper calls attention to existing conditions and sounds a warning of the consequences sure to follow if the unmistakable drift of affairs continues, but the rights of the public make silence inconsistent with duty.

These men who have, apparently, lost their bearing entirely should call a halt, consult the spirit of the law in the bright light of public duty and steer their future course away from the shoals of politics or disaster will certainly come to the rural schools of the county and this people will not receive the benefits which are theirs under the law and the country lose, immeasurably, in public esteem throughout the state.

There is no reason why the rural schools of Fayette county should not stand at the top and they will if the men who are now playing politics with the schools will but realize their mistake and get back to the straight path.

Conditions are now little short of a disgrace.

National Defense Impossible With Our Present Military Forces

Task of America Is to Create One People Out of Many

By Rev. EDWARD A. STEINER, Professor of Applied Christianity, Grinnell College, Iowa

If you consider that you are properly protected in your commercial and business pursuits and in social intercourse, why then it is of little concern to army men whether the army should be larger. But with England able to build and put the Dreadnoughts and other classes of fighting craft on the seas in the quick time that we know she can and with a similar situation in other foreign countries there is a good chance that our navy would be licked if we happened to go to war.

THE NAVY IS OUR FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE. IF IT SHOULD CRUMBLE BEFORE AN ENEMY, GOD HELP US!

If we assume that the navy was licked you can readily see how little we would have to fall back upon with only eighty thousand men in the regular army, scattered all over the country from the state of Washington to Florida, and with between thirty thousand and forty thousand of the regulars detached for duty in our outlying possessions.

If today we can teach to the world one thing—that here in America we create one people out of many—we are proving to Europe that all war is in vain. The Christian way is the right way. IF WE FAIL HERE WE FAIL NOT ONLY AS A NATION, BUT THE WORLD FAILS.

I expect one thing of the war—that the name, the United States of something, will cross the ocean, and the spirit of the stars and stripes will be wafted around the globe.

To take the broken bits, the flats and jetsam, of the men and women of the old world and make of them Americans—that is our art.

THE REAL TASK OF TODAY, WHICH DEMANDS OUR BEST EFFORT, IS TO TAKE THE HETEROGENEOUS, HOPELESS MATERIAL, AND MAKE MEN AND CITIZENS.

True merriment may be distinguished from false by the fact that it bears reflection. We can think of it with pleasure next day and next week.

Poetry For Today

ANY PLACE IN THE U. S. A. IS GOOD ENOUGH FOR ME.

It may be down in Dixie or in the woods of Maine. It may be in the Rockies, or on the Kansas plain. In New York or in Frisco, Mobile or Kankakee. Any place in the U. S. A. is good enough for me.

I don't want to go to Europe an' travel all aroun'.

Beneath the skies of Italy or see old London town.

I don't want to kiss the Blarney stone or visit gay Paree, any place in the U. S. A. is good enough for me.

What if we don't have castles with damp and musty walls?

We have the noble Rockies and grand Niagra Falls.

We don't have to go abroad God's beauties for to see,

Just stay at home and take a trip through U. S. A. with me.

EXPLOITS OF SUBMARINE

London, May 24.—The following statement was issued by the official press bureau: "The admiralty states that the submarine E-14, on its passage to the Sea of Marmora, sank a Turkish gunboat, and, in the Sea of Marmora sank a transport on April 29, a gunboat on May 3, and a very large transport full of troops May 10. On May 13 it compelled a small steamer to run aground. The return journey was made on May 18. The admiral states that it is impossible to do full justice to this great achievement."

It is unofficially reported that 4,000 soldiers on board the transport were drowned.

NEARLY 200 WERE KILLED IN WRECK

London, May 24.—In the wreck of a troop train, bound south, a local train and an express train from London to Glasgow, which collided on the Caledonia railroad at Gretna, near Carlisle, 164 soldiers were killed, apart from a number of civilians. Fully 400 persons were injured. The trains caught fire after the collision.

One reason why poker is the great American game is because you do not have to wait until the next day and get a newspaper to see whether you won or lost.

Women do not keep up with the news, but they do the best they can. A woman can always tell you on Thursday what was in the papers on Monday.

Some marriages result so happily that the wife judges the husband's true worth by the amount of insurance he carries.

Maybe if a woman would talk less her husband would talk more and she wouldn't have to do so much guessing.

It is hard to make some people believe that a falsehood is as ornery as a plain lie.

The flame of love is a grand thing. But it takes a weekly pay envelope to keep the pot boiling after you get married.

The trouble with a lot of the suffragettes is that they carry their platform in their faces.

Why is it that when a man buys a mechanical tumblebug on wheels he thinks he has to wear a leather cap and gloves and a pair of goggles or people wouldn't think he had anything on a Vanderbilt cup winner?

Do not complain because the lad who was graduated from college had to take a $12 a week job selling groceries. He might have developed into a genius, and then his family would have had to support him.

If the Smithsonian Institute ever intends to make a collection of American stuffed idiots it had better get busy now before some of the state legislatures adjourn and the specimens scatter to their native barnyards.

If a man's fingers are crooked from hard work he is ashamed of them. But if he got them crooked playing baseball he is mighty proud of them.

What has become of the oddest odd fellow who used to die every now and then?

Cheer up! What you consider bad luck would be regarded as good luck by some people.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON DRAWS LARGE AUDIENCE

Ushering in the High school commencement week was the Baccalaureate Sermon, of Sunday night, accompanied by services beautiful and impressive, at the High school auditorium.

It was the first time the auditorium had been in use for such purpose, and large as it is, the immense concourse of people assembled taxed its capacity.

The stage showed most elaborate and artistic decorating, with the class colors, silver and scarlet, prominently employed. Rising above a hedge of green and white syringa, which bordered the entire stage, were huge bunches of brilliant red peonies, strikingly effective against the green.

Seated in the rear of the stage were the two Glee Clubs, minus the Seniors, who assisted in the evening's music.

It was an imposing body of forty-seven dignified Seniors in cap and gown that followed the lead of Supt. McClain and Principal Probosco, down the aisles to center seats reserved with the blue and white ribbons. After them came the High school corps of teachers and members of the Board of Education.

Miss Ruth Reid played the Senior march.

Rev. Eugene Prosser, of the Episcopal church and Rev. Wm. Boynton Gage, of the First Presbyterian church, conducted the opening services, to which Miss Ada Woodward added a beautiful solo, "Behold the Master Passes By," Hammond.

Rev. A. W. West of the First Baptist church, delivered a splendid Baccalaureate, forceful and to the point. The following excerpts are culled from it.

The Supreme Quest.

Realizing in a measure the importance of this occasion the speaker had but one purpose in view, to call attention to that wonderful character, that powerful personality, that greatest of teachers, Jesus the Christ.

He said in part: "We understand that whenever the 'Man of Galilee' spoke to the people it was not to speculate as a mere philosopher, nor to give an exhibition of his great knowledge, but, coming as the incarnation of truth, he pointed out the path of life along which all who would might travel with a new vision, a new purpose, and a new power.

"He understands now as he did then that his creatures of earth grow weary in searching for the things that enlarge and enrich life and satisfy the soul. His great heart is no less moved now than it was then with compassion for the multitude who, failing to put first things first, fret and worry over secondary matters. Tonight we have a group of young, ambitious, expectant people who are ready and eager to go forth to conquer and possess. To them I bring the all-important message to the Master, 'seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.'

"What is this kingdom and this righteousness? With winning grace the Master opens the door and ushers us into his great picture gallery wherein he makes plain the true nature and beauty of the kingdom he would bestow upon us. From what he there reveals to us we are led to believe that the kingdom is an enlightened, organized, consecrated community leading to a universal peace, a complete harmonious activity, and an eternal progress.

"The noblest work is that of giving the light of truth to those who sit in darkness, of causing the desert to blossom like the rose, of bringing order out of chaos. The shining light, the growing seed, the opening bud, the coming summer, are symbolic of progress. The enlightened, unfolding mind, the growing character, makes possible the coming of the kingdom of God.

"The kingdom requires organization. The mistake is sometimes made of thinking that organization is power when it is merely the machinery through which power may act. In the kingdom there must be vitalized, energized organization.

Consecration to highest principle must not be overlooked.

"We are hearing much about war, slaughter, and destruction these days. The heart of the world is wrung with grief. The citizen of the kingdom is a soldier of peace. His task is a stupendous one, even that of bringing about universal peace and a complete, harmonious activity among mankind.

"How can this be done? Legislation will never be able to effect it. The kingdom of God does not come by force. An artist, in order that he might paint to life whatever subject he chose, sold himself to evil.

SERVICES IN HONOR OF G.A.R. ORGANIZATIONS

The G. A. R. veterans of the B. H. Millikan and John M. Bell Posts, the Sons of Veterans, the Ladies' Circle of the G. A. R. and the Women of the Relief Corps were signalized honored in the beautiful memorial services held at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

The entire center of the auditorium was filled with members of the organizations, their entrance heralded by the standard bearer carrying Old Glory.

The church had been effectively decorated for the occasion, pulpit and chancel screened in flags and a profusion of white and red flowers.

The music was all specially in keeping with the memories and spirit of the hour.

Miss Kessler, Mr. Harvey and Mrs. Davis played violin and organ prelude and Mr. Harvey played the old soldiers' favorite, "We're Tenting Tonight."

The choir sang feelingly "Under the Willows and Cypress," Gabril.

Rev. Wm. Boynton Gage delivered one of the finest sermons the G. A. R. organizations have ever been privileged to hear, meeting with responsive appreciation from the various branches of the order.

In extending cordial welcome to each G. A. R. organization the minister paid specially beautiful tribute to the "one body directly in front of the pulpit—that body which rendered services to the country so splendid that they will never be forgotten whose honor it is fitting that we devote ourselves especially."

Rev. Gage spoke from the text, "These Stones Shall be for a Memorial," glimpsing back half a century to those days of enlistment and the strenuous four years of the Civil War, when men became stars in the firmament, looming so bright that today we still keep company with these great souls.

"In a few days we will place upon the mounds of their tombs the flowers of recollection and think of those who still live in the institutions they have perpetuated; think of them in the ranks, not breaking alignment as they in memory pass by."

The discourse held up in brief review notable deeds of the Civil War; battles epoch making from that first shot at Sumter, through the fires of the Civil War till the nation, a pigmy at the beginning, emerged a giant—standing forth in world power a colossal figure.

It was the mission of these boys who wore the blue to spell out to the world a splendid message in regard to Democracy and to perpetuate the glory of those ideals for which they fought, bringing to the United States recognition as the wonderland of the world, strong to meet the true tests of a nation's greatness.

TEMPERANCE WORKERS ARE READY TO BEGIN CAMPAIGN

THREE-SCORE CITIZENS FROM ALL OVER COUNTY MEET SATURDAY AND COUNTY CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE AND CHAIRMEN OF COMMITTEES ARE SELECTED TO CONDUCT WORK FOR STATE-WIDE PROHIBITION.

At a temperance meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday, in the interest of State Wide Prohibition, fully 60 representative citizens from all parts of the city and county attended, and an organization was formed to conduct the campaign in this county.

A luncheon was enjoyed by the delegates after which the trustees appointed at a meeting sometime ago made its report, which was adopted by a unanimous vote.

The trustees were empowered to select men for the county campaign committee and chairmen of various committees to aid the county committee, and their recommendations were as follows:

County chairman, Rell G. Allen; County Secretary, M. E. Hitchcock; County Treasurer, Frank Jackson. Mr. Hitchcock declined, stating that business matters would make it impossible for him to devote the attention to the work that was required to insure success.

The following chairmen were named: Finance committee, R. C. Piddicord; Sub-organization committee, Chas. A. Reid; Education and Publicity, Wm. McClain; Speakers and Meetings, Henry Brownell; Transportation, A. F. Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins declined.

Matters pertaining to the work were discussed by ministers and laymen, and the interest manifested was unusually good for the beginning of a campaign.

A campaign fund will be raised and the campaign work will be pushed from the very beginning.

CONVENTION OF
SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Boys and girls of the teen age will play a more important part in the State Sunday School Convention to be held at Zanesville, June 22, 23 and 24, than ever before in the history of that organization, according to information given out from state headquarters in Columbus.

Preceding the regular Sunday School Convention, on Monday, June 21, there will be a boys' congress and a girls' congress, each to be attended by 500 delegates from various parts of the state. Norman V. Peale, of Bellefontaine, president of the boys' congress, will preside, and Miss Lola Thomas of Dayton, will preside at the girls' meeting. On Tuesday there will be a joint session of the boys and girls, for the first time in the history of the state.

During the year, boys' congresses have been held in 39 counties of the state, and girls' congresses in 25 counties. The movement among the boys is a year older than that among the girls, and shows a growth of 15 meetings during the past year. The girl congress movement shows a similar gain.

Zanesville has arranged to give free lodging and breakfast to 500 girls and 500 boys who will attend these congresses. The special feature will be the friendship suppers to be held on the evening of June 21. At 11 o'clock on Tuesday, the joint congresses of boys and girls will appear in a demonstration before the state Sunday School Convention which will be in session at Memorial Hall, the largest auditorium in Zanesville.

SECOND STORY

Some specially acute torment must be reserved for the window dresser of a great city's shops. By caravan and boat and rail, by camel, ibex, mule and horse come the treasures of the world into his cunning hands. Lofts and factories stifle human lives without stint that the window dresser may allure the throng.

It was a particularly charming pair of slippers, and the identical shade of ribbon she desired that caught and held Rita Deane's eyes. Of course, purchase was out of the question. Since earliest remembrance her father had drummed into her pretty head, that personal vanity was the deadliest of sins. And besides—Mrs. Sharpe, Reverend Deane's housekeeper, held tightly to her arm.

Surprisedly, Rita fumbled the money in her purse. Yes, she had enough—just enough.

She lifted her eyes to another window on the seventh floor of the great office building across the street, where James White, her fiance, transacted the affairs of his huge estate. She could see him dimly, pacing up and down in his office, now and then glancing at a letter in his hand.

She had heard something of the contents of that letter from her father before he had dispatched it. In fact he had read it to her, after an exceedingly painful scene. She had rebelled at being obliged to listen to the harsh dictum: "You, a rich backslider in my church, marry my daughter, Rita? Never! How you met her puzzles me, as I have always carefully guarded her."

Yes, the lines of that letter had seared themselves like letters of fire upon her brain.

Again she turned to the window. Some sudden impulse of insurrection frothed within her soul.

"Look! Look!" she cried, excitedly, pointing toward the end of the line of blocked traffic.

Curiosity won. As Mrs. Sharpe's iron fingers relaxed upon their grip, Rita Deane's feet glided swiftly inside the doors of the shop. It was a full five minutes before she returned, innocently assuming an air of injury at the housekeeper's reproaches for her disappearance. The slippers and the ribbon hidden beneath her little jacket more than made up for any punishment that could ever be hers.

Gladly Rita submitted to the clutch of the dragon housekeeper. The more quickly she reached home the sooner would she see the enchanting transformation the finery made in her appearance.

Letter or no letter, dictation or no dictation, she would see James again.

Once in her own room she studied her reflection in the mirror, surprised to find that the sins had left no mark upon her pretty face.

Cautiously, a bit fearfully, she loosed the masses of her hair from their tight braids, binding them with the splendid ribbon, reveling in the effect its contrast worked in her appearance.

And then the slippers!

Carried away with her delight, with this new sensation, this realization of her charms, her feet—those beautifully shod feet—began to perform strange capers, began to steal away her sense of caution. They moved in gay, spirited steps, faster, ever faster, until the dancing girl seemed more like a festive wood-sprite pris-

White smiled happily to himself as, lost in the pictures painted by the flames in the library grate, he visualized the happy hours that had been his since that night in the comfortable, little parsonage when Rita Deane became Mrs. James White.

A man worth while, a young man whose shoulders had not bowed beneath the weight of handling great wealth unloaded upon him immediately he quit college, a man submerged in business, at the age of thirty, he found the happiness which his nature had craved when he soon wearied of the laborious efforts at winning pleasure in the set in which his riches had placed him.

A painless remedy, sure it is—just paint it on a sore corn tonight and tomorrow your feet will feel like new.

Nothing ever made absorbs pain out of a corn like Putnam's Extractor. It dissolves the hard crust, acts quickly, never fails, and above all, it brings the trouble out by the roots.

You'll be satisfied with Putnam's Extractor because it's an old time remedy that is just as represented. Dealers everywhere sell this specific for warts, callous and foot lumps. Costs only a quarter.

Advt.

He could not exactly analyze the sensations of delight it had given him to please her. And she was so easily pleased.

And never an emergency but Mrs. James White met it firmly and controlled it. The Rita Deane of Mary Janes and shabby attire had assumed leadership of the youngest and gayest set of the city.

Arm in arm they moved down the long, winding gravel path to the garage. Rita was prattling over the details of a novel entertainment she proposed giving the following week.

His eyes wandered dreamily over the level lawns, the beautiful gardening, the gorgeous flowers, then halted, and tender, almost longing expression deepened them, as he watched his chauffeur playing with his baby. He glanced furtively at Rita, almost fiercely trying to find some reflection in her eyes of the light dwelling in that of Mary, the chauffeur's wife, as she took the child from her husband, who stood at attention, listening to his mistress' instructions.

And then Billie crowed. That is, it might be called a crow.

For just a moment the whole world seemed spinning about before Jim White's bewildered eyes. He rather suspected that the fat, tiny finger clamped about the one he had timorously thrust appealingly toward the arbitrary infant might have had something to do with this astonishing state of affairs. As from a long ways off he heard the gurglings rise into a penetrating wail. And then the laugh of Mary.

"He wants to go to you, Mr. White. I never knew him to make up with strangers—with anyone before. He wants you—"

Jim laughed, laughed to conceal the choking that constricted his throat.

"I'm afraid I'll drop him," he laughed, even as his arms awkwardly cupped to receive the child.

"Drop him! You hold him just like he was your own!"

Jim White's heart almost stopped beating, even as his arms clung tighter to the one who had come to him. Perfectly satisfied, Billie was making a closer study of this man—creature he had decided to adopt. Unwinkingly his eyes studied the face that looked down at him with such fierce hungering. And then, slowly, ever so slowly, his arms moved up along the great chest and a pair of rather sticky hands crept along the cheeks and finally the arms clasped about the neck, while the eyes closed gently and Billie slept.

"Well, I never saw the beat—Sam, I wish you'd look at—"

Mary caught the annoyed expression on Rita's face as she turned and spoke to her husband. He did not hear her, wrapt in his eager study of the slumbering baby's face. She felt a sudden fierce jealousy consuming her, as she caught the expression of this man she seemed unacquainted with, this man who held a child to his breast so perfectly, with such an expression of unalloyed happiness upon his face. Something dawned upon her, with that intuition which seems given women to amend for a certain lack of logic, which her husband would never have found out—that the perfect happiness that had been hers through this man was due to the paternal instinct in him that made him delight in treating her as a child, to be humored and pampered and spoiled.

"Come, Jim," she said softly, striv- ing beautifully to make her voice sympathetic, "we must hurry now."

Reluctantly he returned Billie to the mother. Rita noticed that for a few steps he moved on tip-toe, as though fearful of waking the child.

Difflently, yet with a certain curious firmness, he led her to the library, seating her in his favorite chair and perching himself boyishly upon the arm of it, his arms about her.

"No wonder Sam's got a good disposition," he said finally.

She braced herself instinctively.

"I sometimes wonder if home can be home at all without a baby," he murmured, more to the sympathetic flames than to her. "I remember how my mother always thought of me as her baby, even after I was in college."

Rita leaned forward, drawing his hand about her neck and fondling it soothingly.

"Don't you ever think—Rita, don't you ever wish there was a baby in our house?" His voice was low, his words a bit stumbling now, as though he found difficulty expressing himself. "Wouldn't it sort of make things happier and—"

She forced a laugh to her lips, a gay, tender laugh even as her fingers twined fiercely about his own.

"But, Jim, I don't want any children just now. I want to enjoy myself, to see something of happiness. Sometimes," she tempered the blow, "sometimes I think, Jim, that I'm little more than a child myself. I've been caged and starved so long that I hardly seem grown up yet. Don't you understand, Jim?"

She fought against showing her hurt as he sharply drew away his cheek from her own, then pressed it close once more.

"Wait till Billie puts those sticky arms about your neck, Rita. Then—then you'll know," he called back.

III.

There was a look of triumph upon Mrs. Sharpe's vinegary face as, announcing herself into the Reverend Deane's study with a triumphant rustle of the newspaper in her hand, she stepped beside him. Slowly he lifted his leaden eyes from the sermon upon which he had been working, shrinking away a bit before that expression he had come to know so well.

He was frightened of this woman, this woman who seemed to read his thoughts, his heartaches; who took such delight in probing at his wounds.

"Yes, Mrs. Sharpe?" he queried wearily, as she thrust the newspaper into his hands with a waspish sweep, waiting beside him while his eyes readily found the leader that signalized another escapade of Mrs. James White, the daughter that had been his.

WHO PAYS?

"A public place—" her breath came with a little hiss at the insult.

"I mean you have made no home for me here and your life belongs to society and is wasted in the pursuit of pleasure."

Cold, passionless, haughty externally, she allowed the maid to coif her hair, then dismissed her.

Swiftly she was transported down the years, and found herself once more a bride, standing before a garage. It was her own garage. And it was her husband beside her who held a baby awkwardly in his arms.

It was her husband who perched upon the arm of her chair, a great human emptiness in his voice, a mighty yearning on the face of him as he pleaded with her for the rounded complete home she refused to give him.

A rustle sounded beside her and she started, afraid to look about, for fear lest she disturb the vision that had risen so clearly before her.

Slowly she turned, looking into a child's inquiring eyes, the eyes of the baby her husband had held that day.

"Don't be afraid, lady," Billie said encouragingly. "I won't hurt you."

Rita Sneers at Her Husband's Love For Children.

back and Jim laughingly advancing toward her, laughing with a curious sobbing sound intermingled with it. And then he halted, the shadow of impending catastrophe gripping its icy hand upon him, freezing his blood. His lips uttered a cry of warning, even as Rita's shrilled forth one of terror and appeal. The ripping of lace sounded as her heel caught in a ruffle of her boudoir gown, tripping her. The heavier sound of falling portieres as she dragged them down in clutching for support against the fall.

Thud—thud—James White knew that horrid sound, the thudding of his wife's beautiful body upon the stairs down which she was hurled, would never quit his ears. Thud—thud—a crash, as she brought up against the pilasters on the main floor, and lay there, very still, her white face upturned toward his own.

Doctor Judd gently withdrew himself from the clutching fingers of the Reverend Deane.

"The operation was a complete success and she is almost able to be about," he said, then, as the old man turned away with a sign of relief: "But I think you had better come with me today. She may need you now."

He did not mind the coldness of his son-in-law's reception, did not mind the hesitancy of his daughter's kiss. He deserved all this. He only wished to be with her, to help her in her hour of misery, the misery he could feel running as an undercurrent beneath Doctor Judd's cheery words.

"Yes, little girl, you came through the operation nobly. It was a complete success. I didn't think you had the strength for such a battle as you put up."

Rita blushed, looking meaningfully up at her husband.

"I had just gained untold strength before the fall."

"Well, it worked wonders. It saved your life, Mrs. White. And now in a few days everything will be as it was before except the happiness of motherhood can never—

Together they laughed delightedly at the merry joke they played, this grownup and this child.

"Why, lady, you're crying! What you crying for?" Billie tugged a bit tighter at her neck, roughing her perfectly coiffured hair in his gusty sympathy. "Ain't you happy, lady?"

"That's why I'm crying, Billie—I'm so happy," she murmured.

With a sigh of contentment at this somewhat hazy explanation, Billie curled up in her lap like the healthy little animal he was and proceeded to go to sleep.

Tenderly, an hour later, with a light in her eyes which no one had ever seen there before, she relinquished her precious burden to the mother smilingly pleading forgiveness for the sleeping truant. And then she turned to meet her husband, just stepping from the car.

Linking her arm in his, she led him to the library, designedly selecting the same chair to seat him in which he, on another day, had seated her; designedly perching upon the arm, toyng with his hair while she struggled to utter because of the cold, puzzled look he gave her.

"I'm sorry, Jim," she whispered finally. "It hasn't been home, has it?"

He did not answer, staring moodily into the leaping flames.

Rita followed the direction of his eyes. It had all seemed so easy when Billie was in her lap, the breaking down of her barriers, the complete surrender that she might reconquer this man's love and cling to it tighter.

"Oh, I wish Billie were here now," she cried, a little catch in her voice. "Then I could make you understand Jim."

"Billie!" He turned toward her inquiringly and something in her eyes confused him, set his pulses dancing, made everything blurry before him.

"Don't you remember, Jim?" Billie—Sam and Mary's baby. Oh, I've had such an adventure. Billie's been visiting me—Billie came over to play with the little boy in our house. He went to sleep in my arms, Jim, went to sleep with his arms about my neck, and they weren't sticky a bit—well, only a little bit. He wanted to play with Jim, with that boy that belongs here and I told him the boy was lost, just a little bit lost. Oh, Jim, don't you—can't you understand—won't you help me—hurt for him?"

He leaped to his feet, his arms going wide as though to clasp her to him. Blushing rosily, but with the gayest of trickling laughter upon her lips, she caught the expression in his eyes and retreated from him, all eager to be caught that she might lay her face against that shoulder she had regained, yet with the maiden instinct for flight. # D. T. & I. WILL NOT STAND IN WAY OF UNION STATION

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF D. T. & I. OFFICIALS AND BUSINESS MEN HELD THIS AFTERNOON—OFFICIALS WILLING TO DO EVERYTHING POSSIBLE FOR WASHINGTON, AND OLD WATER TANK GOES WITHIN 30 DAYS.

Never before has a more cordial meeting between local business men and railroad officials been held in this city than that of Monday afternoon, when more than a half score of officials and some 25 business men met at the Y. M. C. A. and discussed affairs pertaining to the city and D. T. & I.

Mr. Wm. Worthington presided over the meeting, and a number of the officials and several citizens spoke.

President J. M. Kurn, of the D. T. & I. system, was first called upon. He said the road is now considering the matter of installing high class motor cars instead of the steam passenger trains; that the road was putting
